

REED IN ATTACK
ON R. R. BREWSTERSAYS HE HAS BEEN CLOSE TO LIQUOR INTERESTS.

2,000 HEAR SENATOR

Hyde Too Inconsequential to Spend Time on Ship Subsidy and the Tariff.

Speaking before a crowd of 2,000 people, as estimated by Superintendent Tall of the tent, Senator James A. Reed, candidate for re-election, poured forth a volley of arguments on state and national questions that commanded the closest attention of the big crowd present.

The size of the crowd was gratifying to the speaker. Despite the cold weather, the big tent was rather chilly even with the heat from a dozen oil stoves. The crowd was most courteous, receptive, and at times even enthusiastic in applause to the Senator's remarks upon the state administration, the tariff and soldier bonus.

An ovation was given to the speaker, when he took the floor after being introduced by Prosecuting Attorney Charles F. McCaffrey. "How would you feel," he began, "if you were on a platform to speak, where everyone on the platform had been 'agin you'?"

After a few introductory remarks he continued: "I do not claim to be better or wiser than my fellow man or fellow woman. There are no very wonderful men in this world. These wonderful men are created by newspaper writers, magazine artists and political orators. After all they are just men. They have all their faults, and there are none of them much smarter than the average man or woman."

"Individuals count for little, but principles count for everything. And if a man represents great principles, sincerely and honestly, he is of value."

"On these fundamentals in government, Republicans and Democrats are united; we believe in the Constitution of the United States; we believe in the Bill of Rights; we believe in the freedom of speech; in the freedom of religion and the right of peaceful assembly."

The Differences in Parties.

"On the application of these principles, we begin to divide. The Democratic party has always said that this government has no right to lay a burden upon the people unequally; that this government has no right to tax one man for the benefit of another. It is wrong and wicked to set up a privileged class and to tax people of this country for the benefit of that privileged class."

"The Republicans have taken the other side. That is the great big difference between us."

"Let me tell you something."

"I want your votes, not as a beggar, but as a man. But I want them not for myself in any personal sense but as the candidate of a great party standing for great principles."

"But if there is anybody in this audience or in this state who calls himself or herself a Democrat who feels in good conscience that he cannot vote for me and hence is considering staying at home on election day, I want you to come to the polls and if you cannot vote for me, vote for the rest of the Democratic ticket."

"And if there are any Republicans that are thinking about voting for me—and I hope there are a lot of them—I want them to go down the line and vote the rest of the ticket also."

Discuss State Situation

Reed then turned his attention to the state administration. "I have not time to discuss Brother Hyde," he began, "I cannot waste my time on such an inconsequential personage. Yes, he lowered the taxes in Missouri—lowered them on the railroads, incomes and public service utilities, but on the homes and farms they were raised from 20 to 100 per cent with an average of 33 1-3 per cent."

In speaking of the new dormitory here, Reed said: "I've been told that Hyde built a building here. He didn't build it, you tax payers built it and he located it here, he had to locate it somewhere."

While speaking upon taxation he mentioned the full valuation by saying: "You farmers can't hide your farms, your cattle or your mules, but the city man can put $10,000 worth of securities in his hip pocket and seldom turns in more than 10 per cent. He further adds."

JURY GOES TO LOOK AT
"EVIDENCE" IN DRAINAGE CASENovel Method Is Ordered by Judge
Dawson of Circuit Court this Morning

In the Skidmore-Maitland Drainage District case, which was before the circuit court this morning, Judge Dawson ordered that the jury be taken to the ground to inspect the "evidence" rather than have the evidence submitted in court. This is rather novel way of submitting evidence, but more satisfactory. The jury left this afternoon at 1 o'clock, accompanied by one man from each side to explain the contentions. The land in question is the old Jester farm adjoining the Maitland Fair grounds, part in Nodaway and part in Holt County. The jury is expected back this evening with the verdict.

JAMES AND NULL SPEAK
AT C. OF C. DINNERWhen You Get Acquainted With Your Neighbor the Next Matter Is to Do Something for Him

The Rev. C. C. James, pastor of the First Methodist Church, and the Rev. Charles Null, pastor of the Methodist Church at Oakland, Cal., were the speakers last night at the weekly dinner of the Chamber of Commerce.

Mr. James said that he was impressed with the slogan that the Chamber of Commerce has been using, that of "Get acquainted with your neighbor, you might like him." He said that the slogan was fine but it brought up a question. The question is, when you get acquainted with him what are you going to do for him. If you do not do something for him you will reap no benefit from becoming acquainted.

Mr. James spoke then of the Nodaway County School Day, saying that in this the Chamber of Commerce showed that in getting acquainted with the neighbor it was really going to do a service. The School Day was a clean and uplifting affair for the community. Town and country folks became acquainted and would assist each other more and more.

Mr. Null, who has lived in California for many years, spoke of the wonderful roads in that state and complimented Nodaway County on what it is doing.

NORTHERN PART OF TOWN
WITHOUT WATER TONIGHTIs to Be Cut Off While Connection with Main Is Being Made at Seventh and Walnut.

The northern part of Maryville will be without water for an hour or two sometime after 10 o'clock this evening. The ditch that is to carry the line to furnish the new dormitory at the State Teachers College with water is being dug today and the connection to the mains at Seventh and Mulberry streets is to be made tonight. It has been found that in place of a mere elbow at the corner of Mulberry and Seventh streets, there is a cross joint, so all that is necessary is to melt the plug out of the cross and lead in a piece of pipe. A valve in this pipe will be closed and the water can then be turned on again. Were it not for the cross it would be necessary to put in a lot of work and have the water off for a longer time.

The city will run the line on Seventh street from Mulberry street to Walnut street. Here the city will be met by the College, with the ditch and lay the line to the building.

It is necessary to put in the new line, since the line that runs to the main building is not large enough to carry the amount of water that is needed for both the buildings.

PLAN HOT LUNCH
CLUBS IN SCHOOLSARE FOR CHILDREN FROM 10 TO 18 YEARS OF AGE

PREPARE ONE DISH A DAY

Boys Can Take Their Turn at the Stove as Cook Too, If They Care
To Do So

Miss Essie M. Hoyle, head of the home economics department of the extension service of the college of agriculture of the University of Missouri arrived in Maryville yesterday and will put in the week visiting the schools of the county in the interest of hot lunches for the children. She outlines her plan for getting the lunch as follows:

"It is the plan to form hot lunch clubs in the various schools. The children from 10 to 18 years will belong to this. One hot dish will be prepared each day and the members of the club will take week about in preparing it. When one pupil is cook there will be another who is her assistant. When the week is up then the assistant becomes cook and another assistant is applied to take her place."

"The cook will prepare the dish for all the pupils of the school, since it will not be possible for the smaller ones to be members of the club. There are a number of things that can be prepared. Some of them are cream soup, cocoa, vegetables, custards and meat soup. Only one of these will be prepared each day and all the pupils eat the same thing. This makes it possible to have a variety so that the lunches are not allowed to become such that the pupils tire of them."

"As to equipment, all that is needed is the individual cup and spoon for the pupil, a two or three burner oil stove and a few containers to place on the stove. In most cases it is not even necessary to buy a stove as during the winter months there is nearly always some one in the district who is willing to loan a stove that they use in their kitchen during the summer."

Miss Hoyle says that in her work this week she intends to give some health talks to the pupils. She expects to pick out some of the children of the district who are under weight and give them some special instructions in health. She will also talk with the parents in some of the districts.

Miss Hoyle is being assisted in her work for the hot lunch by Dr. C. P. Fryer and other members of the Nodaway County Health Department. The health department says that many of the children throughout the county and the country as a whole are under weight and it is the theory that they could be brought to the proper weight and health conditions if they had hot lunches at school.

When asked if the boys would be admitted to membership in the hot lunch clubs, Miss Hoyle said that they would if they cared to be. She thinks that it is good for the boys to belong as they should know how to cook, any way.

Arrangements for preparing the lunch are made in such a way that it causes little if any confusion in the school.

H. M. ELLSWORTH GETS BAD
EYE BURN FROM LIME

H. M. Ellsworth, who suffered a burnt eye when some lime with which he was plastering yesterday fell in his face is reported to be better today. The member is still swollen, but he is expected to be all right in a week or so. Mr. Ellsworth was working at the Raymond Jones home west of Maryville yesterday when some mortar fell off his trowel into his face, burning his eye.

DEMAND FOR RE-ESTABLISH-

Chicago, Oct. 17.—A demand for the re-establishment of the continuous eight-hour day and interpretation of other working rules was made of the United States Railroad Labor Board by President Manion of the railroad telegraphers. The rules now effective, Manion said can be interpreted so many ways that a uniform ruling is necessary.

Congress

William E. Spratt, Democratic candidate for representatives in congress from the Fourth Congressional District, made the opening talk at the Democratic tent last evening, after he had been introduced by Ellis Cook. Mr. Spratt said that he felt that all would be well in the election. He said that the party was to welcome back at the November election all the Democrats who had voted with the Republican party in 1920 and that it would welcome all the "visitors." He told a little story in which he said that he was like Lincoln was the time when he was neither going to heaven or hell but to congress.

PLANNING A GIRL'S
BASKETBALL TEAMMISS MACLEOD ISSUES CALL FOR CANDIDATES

SHOULD HAVE GOOD ONE

Five of the Six on First String of Last Year Are Back in the College

Plans are being made for the Girls Basketball team at the College. Yesterday Miss Mary MacLeod, director of women's athletics at the College, issued a call for candidates for the team.

Prospects for a winning team are good. Last year the girls team won every game played and therefore won undisputed claim to the State Championship. This year five of the six first string players are again in school. Mrs. Walter Nixon, who played at jumping center, is not in school this year but the two forwards, Mabel Raines and Lethel Garten, are back as are Ruth Miller, running center and Martha Kennedy and Margaret Remus, guards. Wave Hulet, a substitute guard of last year is not in school now.

Besides these regulars of last year several girls are in school who have quite a reputation as female basketballers. Two of these are Hazel Pugh and Evelyn Raines, members of last year's Maryville High School team. Both of these girls were selected to fill places on the mythical all-Northwest Missouri high school team at the tournament which was held at the College last spring.

Taking all these things into consideration it looks as though Miss MacLeod will have a championship team again this year. With the new material and the old dependables she should have a fast bunch of basketballers.

Starting so early this season she will be able to work the new girls in and before the season proper starts they should all be accustomed to the style of play used.

The competition for the team should be strong. Aspirants for places will have to work hard to displace any of last years team. It would be quite a feather in the cap of any girl who placed as forward in the place of either Miss Raines or Miss Garten for these girls are both fast and accurate and they both have the old fight all the time.

In the guard position Martha Kennedy is always sure and steady and Margaret Remus is one of the tightest little guards that ever played on the local court.

As running center Ruth Miller rarely meets an equal so she is a pretty sure bet for that place. Of course the position of jumping center is yet to be filled. It remains to be seen who will be the lucky girl to fill this place.

DE MOLAYS GIVE A PLEASING PLAY"TAILOR-MADE MAN" GOES OVER
BIG LAST NIGHT

WAS A DIFFICULT PLAY

Comedy in Four Acts Was Filled
With Chuckles and Dramatic Moments

"It was a moment we had long anticipated."

Those seeing "A Tailor-Made Man" at the Empire Theater and the crowd attending the first performance last night had no cause to be disappointed and every reason to be pleased. The four-act comedy, presented by the Maryville Chapter, Order of De Molay, will be given again tonight, beginning promptly at 8 o'clock.

The play was full of chuckles from the opening of the first act until the final curtain. Moments of tense drama were also frequent.

The work of Miss Blanche Dow, head of the Department of Dramatics at the State Teachers College, who directed the play, cannot be praised too highly for it was clearly evident that a better selection of characters could not have been made. Comments were frequently heard last night that this was a better production than any Miss Dow had directed here in previous seasons. The play was staged by J. Louis Kraft, and much credit is also due him.

Miss Mabel Raines and William Mapel were easily the stars in the production. Miss Raines played the part of Tanya Huber, the tailor's daughter, and Mapel the part of John Paul Bart, "the Tailor-Made Man." Richard Runyan as Peter McConkie, the tailor's assistant, Harold Houchens as Dr. Sonntag, a scholar and Anna Mae Gilles as Mrs. Kitty Dupuy, a divorcee, also deserve special mention although many others in the cast were exceptionally good.

Other characters in the troupe were Clella LeHeu—Mr. Huber, the tailor Russell Allan—Mr. Rowlands, a newspaper man.

Ralph Wilson Eversole—Mr. Jelliecot, a yachtman.

Leiston Webb—Pomeroy, a valet.

Cloy Appleby—Mr. Stanlaw, a millionaire.

Margaret Louise Hosmer—Mrs. Stanlaw, his aristocratic wife.

Ruth Miller—Corrinne, their daughter.

Robert Nicholas—Wheating, their butler.

Fred Connors—Mr. Fitzmorris, society man.

Jeanette Brock—Mrs. Fitzmorris, his wife.

Wilson McCurry—Bobby Westlake, man about town.

Margaret Dietz—Bessie Dupuy.

Perry Eads—Mr. Nathan, a financier.

Margaret Remus—Miss Shayne, his stenographer.

Daniel F. Hunt, Charles Elmore and T. M. Walton, as Mr. Russell, Mr. Cain and Mr. Flynn, labor delegates.

Ruth Houchens and Martha Kennedy, society characters at the Stanlaw reception.

The thread of the story is woven about the amusing adventures of John Paul Bart, an assistant in a tailor shop, who seizes an opportunity and wins out. He borrows a dress suit and goes uninvited to a fashionable reception, where, with the proper recitation of an unusual incident which he uses to good advantage in making the acquaintance of a noted financier, he secures an important position in the financier's shipbuilding corporation. Months later complications arise which threaten to ruin Bart's success, and Bart decides to be first and releases a story to the newspapers which reveals his past adventures and his true status in life. The drama ends happily when the financier promotes "the tailor-made man" to a higher position than before, and Bart finds his true love in Tanya, the tailor's daughter, who always encouraged the youthful dreamer when every one else viewed him lightly.

Weak situations, occasionally occur in the play although they are few. Most of the characters are strong at all times.

An orchestra composed of Ralph Wilson Eversole, Carlos Yehle, William Gaugh, Buster Strong and Glen Trullinger, furnished music between acts and received considerable applause.

C-2 BURNS TODAY
AT SAN ANTONIOWAS TO MAKE AN EXHIBITION
FLIGHT

BUT 10 FT. FROM GROUND

Huge Dirigible Is now Only a Heap
Of Rubbish—Investigations to Be Started

San Antonio, Tex., Oct. 17.—One man was seriously injured and four others suffered minor injuries this morning when fire of unknown origin destroyed the army dirigible C-2 a few minutes before a scheduled exhibition. Sergt. A. L. Albert, a member of the crew, was seriously injured when he jumped from the rigging. Those who sustained minor injuries, chiefly from burns were Capt. N. M. Walker, aid to general Mines, commander of the eighth corp area, Wasson Dean, Major Strauss, commander C-2, and Manuel Cardenas, newspaper man. The dirigible, which arrived here Sunday on its flight from California to Langley Field, Va., was filled with army officers and newspaper men preparatory to an exhibition flight over San Antonio when the blaze flashed over it and completely enveloped the huge ship.

Narrow escapes were numerous as a crowd of more than 500 was near when flames enveloped it. The big machine quickly burned and is a mound of rubbish.

Investigation is to be started immediately, it is announced.

Five newspaper men whose lives were in danger when the ship caught fire were near the big bag, which contained 30,000 cubic feet of hydrogen. The car of the ship was only ten feet from the ground when the flames burst forth.

Had the accident occurred a few minutes later the men would have had to jump from 50 to 100 feet and perhaps have been seriously injured.

San Antonio, Texas, Oct. 17.—A revised list of injured in the destructive fire of C-2 numbers seven. Major John Thompson is in a serious condition with a broken arm and internal injuries. Others were less seriously injured.

GOMPERS AND LANDIS AT AMERICAN LEGION CONVENTION"White Haired Judge" Says that he Will Never Miss a Convention
as Long as He Lives

New Orleans, La., Oct. 17.—Samuel Gompers, ruler of organized labor and former judges Kenesaw and Landis joined today at the fourth annual convention of legion in a tribute to leading part played by ex-service men in helping win the World War.

As the president of American Federation of labor and the high commissioner of the national past time appeared together on same platform they were accorded a tumultuous welcome from "doughboys" and "gobs" assembled in the improvised convention hall.

"The whitehaired judge" was surrounded by a mob of baseball fans eager to swap opinions with him. "I'll never miss an American Legion Convention as long as I live," was Landis' greeting to them. I want to see you boys continue your constructive efforts for higher Americanism."

Gompers was also the central figure of groups. He smilingly admitted that he had not a chance to compete with Landis as the holder and the key to so popular a subject as baseball.

New Orleans, Oct. 17.—The national convention American Legion today voted to hold the next meeting at San Francisco.

HEALTHY MINDED PEOPLE

Every community is making a big effort in these times to secure physical health both for the children and older folks. Physical training and instructions in hygiene, health centers and boards of health work, are removing many bad conditions and showing people how to take care of themselves.

But some folks of a nervous and introspective temperament have not yet acquired a full degree of mental health, and they injure themselves by worries about big things and little. Doctors and others frequently tell such persons that they must exercise more will power and suggest to themselves healthful and confident thoughts, which will assist them to meet the difficulties of life bravely and not fret over imaginary troubles. Many people are greatly helped by this philosophy.

There are others who find it difficult to command their own thoughts. The more they try to banish melancholy suggestions, the more morbid ideas return. People of that type can usually find a remedy for their troubles in some new and interesting form of activity.

It is amazing how low spirited people will see life in an entirely different aspect, when they take hold of something that really interests them. If they have a fondness for music, athletics, cards, dancing or social life, such diversions will often revolutionize their point of view. Their thoughts have been circulating in too narrow a round, and some change of attention will set healthful mental currents in motion and assist them to see life in a normal way.

It is worth a great deal to people to keep a healthy minded outlook. Folks who greet the world with a smile and who enter cheerfully into its activities and radiate sunshine, are the ones most likely to succeed in business and makes friendships.

The people are not yet ready to fall out with "Brother Ben" Hyde because he ordered the insurance rates reduced.

Katherine MacDonald, the most beautiful woman in the world, has fifty pairs of shoes it is said. She must be a beauty from the ground up.

A woman tried to drown her troubles by pushing him into the river. If all the women pursue that policy, there will soon be about ten women to one man.

It might be well suggested that under the law, any one driving an automobile in an intoxicated condition or under the influence of drugs, is liable to a penalty ranging anywhere from a $100 fine, a term in jail or both, up to five years in the penitentiary.

The crime is made a felony and it is about time the penalty was being applied. The same penalties apply to drivers of cars who cause serious accidents to others and get away without leaving their name and address.

MEXICO MUST IMPORT CATTLE KILLED FROM OTHER PLACES

Seventy Per Cent From United States and Remainder From Argentina.

Mexico City, Oct. 17.—Approximately 1,000 head of cattle, hogs, sheep and goats are killed for meat in Mexico City daily, and of this number at least 98 per cent are imported from either the United States or Argentina. Seventy per cent of the imported stock comes from the United States, usually four days by train from the border, and the remainder is brought from South America on steamers that traverse the distance between Buenos Aires and Vera Cruz in seventeen days. In view of these figures, J. P. Primm and Lee Russell, both well known to cattle men of the Southwest, are just completing a stock yards here which at present has a capacity of 7,500 head of stock and can be enlarged as necessity demands.

The stock yards, the first of the kind ever established in Mexico on modern plans, adjoins the city slaughter pens and a working agreement has been made whereby all of the city kill is first received in the local yards and there prepared for market. Cold storage is an unknown thing in Mexico, the natives preferring their meat fresh killed, but according to Mr. Primm, who is in active charge of the yards, a storage plant will be started as soon as the other enterprises are safely on their feet.

Revolutions Have Depleted Cattle. The inauguration of the American-owned stock yards is said by its backers to be the forerunner of an earnest attempt by United States stock men to replenish the Mexican herds that have been depleted by years of revolution. A branch of the Pure Bred Live Stock Association of the United States has been established in Mexico City and is offering its services free of charge to ranchers and farmers in the selection of pure bred animals.

According to best available figures there were some 15,000,000 native cattle in Mexico before the revolution, which started ten years ago. There are less than 3,000,000 now and these are of low grade. Before the revolution conservative estimates say there were 40,000,000 sheep and goats compared to the scant 7,000,000 now roaming the hills. Hog raising has always been neglected and the number of swine in the country is almost negligible, indicative of the natives' preferences for meats other than pork is the fact that out of the 1,000 animals killed in Mexico City daily, less than 50 are hogs—and these to supply a city of 1,000,000 inhabitants.

Mexico Grants Concessions

In order to facilitate shipments from the United States and to offset heavy consignments from Argentina, which are growing every month, American cattle men have secured numerous concessions from the Mexican government whereby animals may be brought into Mexico with a minimum of difficulty. Inspection regulations have been relaxed as much as possible and the railroads are making serious efforts to move stock trains on express schedule.

Strange as it may seem, Argentina cattle can be shipped to Mexico City cheaper than can animals from south Texas, although the former stock does not compare in quality with that from the United States. Cattle shipments from all foreign countries to Mexico during 1921 were more than 165,000 head, of which 140,000 came from South Texas.

STUDENTS ACCUSED OF IDLENESS ARE DEFENDED BY OHIO COLLEGE HEAD

Columbus, O., Oct. 17.—"Much criticism is being aimed at colleges because so many students are taking courses for which they are not fitted," declared Dr. W. Q. Thompson, president of the Ohio State University.

"It is the duty of the secondary schools to discover the line of endeavor for which the student is best equipped."

The charge has been made that colleges and universities are filled with drones, idlers, shirkers and social climbers. Persons of this nature are found in all walks of life. For this reason such a charge cannot be adequately made against one special group of persons.

Bellows-Deatherage Wedding

The marriage of Miss Mildred Elizabeth Bellows and Mr. William Newland Deatherage took place at 3 o'clock this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Dilling Bellows. The Rev. C. C. James, pastor of the First Methodist Church, read the single ring service in the living room before the fireplace. A candelabrum holding lighted tapers centered the mantel shelf and a mirror above reflected the bridal party during the service. On either side were baskets of Aaron Ward roses. Little Sarah Frances Rowlett and Emma Ruth Bellows, the flower girls, wore frocks of white organdie and carried baskets of Aaron Ward roses. Miss Lillian Wright of Kansas City, who was maid of honor, was gowned in silver cloth with an overdrape of yellow chiffon and she carried a shower bouquet of Aaron Ward roses. The bride wore a gown of white crepe satin with a draped skirt which was caught at the side with a buckle of pearls. Her round length veil of tulle was arranged in coronet fashion and was held with an ornament of pearls. She carried sweetheart roses and lilies of the valley made into a shower. Mr. Charles Bellows, Jr., brother of the bride, acted as best man for Mr. Deatherage. Before the service Mrs. Fred R. Wolfers, accompanied by Miss Geneva Wiffey, sang "When Song is Sweet" (Sans Souci) and "At Dawning" (Cadmus). Miss Wiffey played the wedding march from "Lohengrin" for the processional and "To a Wild Rose" (MacDowell) during the service. At the reception following the ceremony Mrs. John Landy Deatherage of Kansas City, mother of the bridegroom, received with Mr. and Mrs. Bellows. Assisting in receiving were Mr. and Mrs. Dale Bellows, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bellows, Miss Nellie Douglas, and Mary Jane Bellows. A yellow and white color scheme was carried out in the appointments of the two-course luncheon and the house decorations. The dining table held as a centerpiece a copper jardiniere filled with yellow chrysanthemums and at each corner of the table were baskets of yellow garden flowers.

thanks to those people who lent wardrobe and personal accessories to those participating in the production.

If there was anything about the whole evening that possibly did not meet with the favor of the audience it was the fact that the theater was not warm enough and the audience was uncomfortable. This, however, is no fault of the management. All the steam possible was turned on but due to the fact that one of the pipes was clogged the theater did not heat properly. However, the entire piping system of the theater underwent a thorough cleaning this morning and the heat has been turned on since 8 o'clock. This should make it more comfortable tonight.

How to Win a Wife's Love

By CLARA DELAFIELD

(© 1922, Western Newspaper Union.)

"I dunno how I ever come to love Tom Snider," said his wife Emily on the 15th anniversary of their marriage day. "I know I oughtn't to be saying it, but that little runt ain't worth the bread and butter he consumes."

"But I guess all women's that way. They sees what they thinks is their heart's ideal in some man, and they puts their head into the halter for better or worse—only it's always worse. And that's that."

"Not that he ain't a good provider, I'll say that much for him. But he's a man that can't stand up for himself at all. It makes me hot when I think of the back talk he'll take from the gas-collector and the ice-man. I like a man to be a man."

The marriage specialist worked his finger round his collar. "And so you've come to me to restore love's young dream for you, Mrs. Snider, I understand," he said.

"Well, I was feeling sort of sentimental," admitted Emily Snider. "But shucks, what's the use? I'll never look on Tom Snider with the eyes I once looked on him with. Trouble is, when you get to know a man, you can't respect him. They're all the same. There isn't any man on earth worthy of the love of a good woman."

"What is your husband's occupation?" the marriage specialist inquired.

"He's a clerk in a corporation. The kind that never rises because they lets themselves be hustled all round the shop by any cheap skate that bellows at them."

"May I see him?"

"Sure you can see him. Go down to Castex & Co. and ask for Tom Snider in the bookkeeper's department. You'll see him there on a high stool, with his coat off and paper sleeves. And I guess it's worth the price, because I sure would like to see Tom Snider with the eyes of love again, if it was only for half a minute."

The marriage specialist was interested in the case. "I suppose you had your photographs taken when you were married?" he asked.

"Sure, Tom and me and the minister. I'll send it to you, only I've got to have it back, because it's all I've got to remind me what a fool I was."

It was a very serious marriage specialist who drew Tom Snider into his office during the lunch hour on the following day.

"You see, Mr. Snider, I know how your wife feels," he said. "She wants you to be the sort of man she saw in her dreams. Now—pardon me, that is rather a shabby coat, isn't it?"

"It's as good as I can afford," answered Tom Snider humbly.

"But your wedding clothes—what did you do with that fine Prince Albert, white tie, creased striped trousers, and shining silk hat?"

"Them? Oh, I've got them somewhere," Mr. Snider answered. "What about 'em?"

"This, my friend," said the marriage specialist, laying a hand impressively upon his shoulder. "When a woman falls in love with a man, it's the man as he then appears to her who will mould her idea of him for ever after. Now your wife was most in love with you at the moment of your marriage."

"Very well. A subconscious complex has been created in her mind. The man she loves is identified in her mind with a well-fitting Prince Albert coat, a white tie, a pair of creased striped trousers, and a very shiny silk hat. Do you begin to get me?"

"Dunno as I do," growled Mr. Snider.

"I will expound," said the marriage specialist, and he proceeded to do so. On the following afternoon Mrs. Snider received a telephone call from the specialist.

"Say, I think I can restore that vanished dream of yours, Mrs. Snider," he called. "Can you come down to my office at 6 o'clock?"

"Dunno as I can," Mrs. Snider answered. "That fool will be around here then, yelling for his cats."

"He won't," said the marriage specialist emphatically. "I urge you to come, Mrs. Snider. I have something of the utmost consequence to communicate."

"Oh, very well, I guess I may as well, seeing as I've paid you," came the answer.

At 6 o'clock the marriage specialist, who occupied an inner and an outer office—one at a time, of course—received Mrs. Snider at the door.

"Are you prepared to see your husband with the eyes of love?" he asked. "Sakes, yes, if you can do it. Where is the little monkey?"

"Behold him," said the marriage specialist, and threw open the inner door.

Before Mrs. Snider's startled eyes appeared her spouse, attired in a well-fitting Prince Albert, a white tie, gray, creased, striped trousers, and a shiny silk hat.

"Tom! You—you—your darling!"

"Emmy, my dove, my own!"

The marriage specialist closed the door of his office with a smile. Presently a radiant pair came out, their arms about each other.

Tom Snider beckoned the marriage specialist aside.

"Say, it worked fine," he said, "but do I have to wear the blamed things as long as I live?"

INVENTS A NEW STEEL

Through the personal efforts of Mason Grover, a blacksmith of Bidwell, O., the government is in possession of a secret process by which a finer quality of steel than that now turned out may be produced. Grover's steel is produced from ordinary iron at a few cents per hundredweight, the iron being subjected to the secret process which makes the finished steel so hard that it will readily cut any other piece of steel, resist friction, retain its temper and withstand more than double the strain of other steels. Grover, shown here, has refused many offers from steel manufacturers seeking his process, but he has turned the formulas over to the government.

Kittens Stolen by Hen

An Oregon farmer had a cat with a family of four in his haymow not far from a brooding hen. The hen moved one day into the cat's home and lived there for a day or two, when she stole two of the kittens and moved them to the far end of the mow. It is not known how the hen managed it. The cat repeatedly tried to reclaim her stolen family but the hen fought her every time. At last the farmer had to separate this strange family, so he took the kittens' feathered mother and set her on some duck's eggs where she now sits contentedly and soon will have a family all to herself.

WILL SHOW MOTION PICTURES WITHOUT DIMING LIGHTS

New York, Oct. 17.—After three years of experimenting, Maude Adams, noted actress, is ready to present for practical use an invention designed to permit the showing of motion pictures without dimming the theater lights, according to a report here today.

The invention is said to be a type of light that can be used for theater illumination and left burning while pictures are being thrown on the screen.

Miss Adams retired from the stage about three years ago, and soon after recovering from a breakdown, began work on the invention. At the General Electric company's plans in Schenectady, she was given a section of the building and permitted to work in seclusion. The quarters included living accommodations.

GREEK BOSS OF THRACE

General Papoulis, former commander of the Greek forces on the Smyrna front, was appointed governor of Thrace just before the revolution which deposed King Constantine. He threw in his lot with the revolutionists and will probably lead the Greeks in their effort to keep the Turks out of eastern Thrace.

Coincidence.

Some friends of V. W. Monroe, who is stopping at a downtown hotel, had tried all day to get in touch with him. But he was never in his room when they phoned him. So they gave it up.

Getting into their car they decided to drive downtown. Making the turn from Pennsylvania west into Washington street, they reached the crossing just as Mr. Monroe was crossing from the south side of Washington street to the north side. They had slowed up several times coming downtown. They had waited for traffic and had driven slowly past some sunken gardens far up in North Pennsylvania street, yet the four-mile drive had been so timed that they met the man they wished to see as he was crossing the street!—Indianapolis News.

CATTLE PRICES STEADY HOGS AND LAMBS HIGHER.

Kansas City, Oct. 17.—Though cattle and calf receipts were larger than a week ago, they were short of a year ago. The general price position of practically all classes remained unchanged compared with last week's close, while there were spots slightly stronger, this strength was not sufficient to record any advance. Hog prices were 5 to 10 cents higher, with most sales around the 9 cent level. General trade was active. Both shippers and packers were in the competition. Sheep and lambs were strong to 15 cents higher.

Beef Cattle.

Trade in fat cattle was fairly active with prices steady. Good to choice kinds remained in small supply, and killers had to pick over offerings to get enough desirable kinds to fill their orders. Plain classes predominated and they continued to sell slowly. There was no tendency on the buying side to bear the market. General indications are that the supply of full fed steers from now on will be below requirements, and the present liberal movement of grass cattle is clearing pastures rapidly so that decreasing receipts are probable after this week. Cows and heifers sold slowly at steady prices. Veal calves were fully steady.

Stocks and Feeders

With the available supply of stock cars for outgoing shipments larger than a week ago trade in thin cattle ruled active at steady prices. There is every indication that demand will remain larger for some time to come. The bulk of the demand is coming from the East and North.

Hogs

The decline in hog prices which was in progress most of last week was checked yesterday by a rally of 5 to 10 cents. The top price was $9.10 and the bulk of offerings sold at $8.65 to $9.05. Trading opened slowly but closed active at the full advance. Stock hogs and pigs were stronger at $8 to $8.65. Both shippers and packers traded freely.

Sheep and Lambs

Lambs were quoted up 15 cents and sheep were steady. The bulk of the offerings, Utah and Colorado lambs sold at $13.75 to $14. Ewes sold at $5.25 to $6.25, and feeding lambs $12.75 to $13.50.

Horses and Mules

About 900 horses and mules arrived the past two days, the largest run of the season. There was fairly good inquiry for the better kinds, but plain classes were hard to move.

RAILROAD STRIKE IS COSTLY TO MISSOURI

The necessity of mobilizing the State National Guard to protect railroad property during the shopmen's strike was $153,959.05 to Sept. 8, according to Adjutant General Rauff. Had it not been that the troops were called out during the training season, when the United States pays part of the expense, the State of Missouri would have been obliged to pay twice $153,959.05 to give the railroads the protection which the Constitution of the State guarantees the citizens thereof.

Strikes are costly. But the direct loss of $153,959.05 to the State Treasury is but a small fraction of the loss caused to business in Missouri by the railroad shopmen's strike.

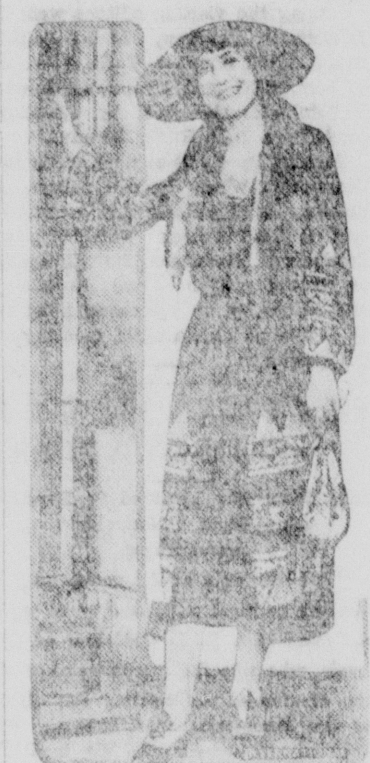

Is there no way to prevent labor strikes?

REED IN ATTACK ON R. R. BREWSTER

ed that expenses in every department of the state had been increased.

Upon the wet and dry question, he challenged, "Where is your dry candidate? If you mean the man who has always voted to uphold the Constitution, you mean me, but if you mean the man who for fifteen years represented the brewers, whose campaign manager was for years allied with the liquor interests, then vote for Mr. Brewster." He added to these remarks that Walter Dickey's millions were behind Brewster and the Kansas City Star and Dickey's Journal were fighting to see whose man he was.

Ridicules Harding.

The Senator let loose his sarcasm against President Harding. "Harding is a good natured soul, but he is a standpatter of the old variety. He hasn't discovered that the world has changed a particle since Mark Hanna was a boy."

"But he is good natured. He is as good natured a fellow as ever chased a golf ball across a golf links. He plays golf three days a week, then his nerves are completely shattered, and he has to go out for a sail on the Mayflower for the other three days, and he hasn't got any time left for work, because on Sunday he has to go to church, where the sightseers are looking for him."

Bitter Against Mellon

Against Andrew W. Mellon, Senator Reed directed the full torrent of his invective. He denounced him as the "organizer of the Alumni Company of America, a world trust that controls the price of every bit of aluminum and has accumulated fabulous profits." He was a director in sixty-eight great banks, trust companies and industrial concerns, Reed charged. The ox, though a dumb animal, knows his master; the ass, though a stupid beast, knows the way to his master's crib," he quoted. "He could not see anything through his financial glasses except the things that add to the profits of himself and his class of people."

Senator Reed then took up in detail the Republican reduction of the income tax, the abolition of the corporate stock and excess profit taxes, and the bonus bill. "They gave the boys three cheers, and they gave the millionaires all they wanted," he concluded.

He staunchly advocated the passage of the bonus bill but said that it had been "interred in the sepulcher of the finance committee where it would rest until Gabriel blows his trumpet."

Considerable time was spent in discussing the new tariff bill and he said that if anything wasn't taxed in the new bill it was because it was overlooked. He held up a copy of the bill which made a good sized book.

In discussing the ship subsidy bill he termed it the greatest legislative monstrosity in history," saying that the government proposed to sell the ships for one-eighth of what they cost and then pay the capitalists to run them.

In closing Reed drew considerable applause with a plea that the American boys, their fathers and mothers do as much to preserve our American ideals as they did during the war.

Senator Reed and his party arrived in Maryville about seven o'clock from Rock Port, where he spoke yesterday afternoon. A luncheon was given in his honor at the Linville hotel, attended by the Democratic editors of Northwest Missouri and the reception committee in Maryville.

Among the visiting editors were J. I. Bennett, Bolckow, L. R. Bagby, Craig, L. H. Sommer, Tarkio; W. H. Gilbert and Logan Dysart, Savannah and John Staple and Dr. Watkins, Rock Port, John Rush, Barnard.

Senator Reed left at noon today for Conception where he will address a meeting at 2 o'clock this afternoon and at 7:30 o'clock a meeting at Stanberry. Wednesday he will speak at Excelsior Springs and Plattsburg and Thursday an afternoon meeting at Richmond and a night meeting at Independence.

MRS. OLDFATHER SAYS WOMEN SHOULD GET IN POLITICS

Says State Has Returned to Republican Utopia, "Normalcy" About Taxes.

"It is the duty of the women to get in some political party and work with it," said Mrs. R. E. Oldfather of St. Louis, who was the second speaker of the evening at the meeting last night at the Democratic tent. "It is the duty of the women who are inclined to take some steps along political lines to get in touch with the stay-at-homes and see that they get interested in the political issues."

Mrs. Oldfather said that she was a Democrat because she stood for the principles for which Thomas Jefferson stood and because the Democratic party has never made a record that impartial historians can criticize.

"We have returned to that Republican Utopia, 'Normalcy,'" she said.

Mrs. Oldfather said that many Democrats had voted the Republican ticket two years ago and that the Democratic party should kill the fatted calf for them on their return.

Congress has enacted a tariff bill that even the Globe-Democrat of St. Louis will not support.

Brewster once posed as a friend of Woodrow Wilson and he now says because me of anything but voting for Woodrow Wilson.

Governor Hyde is a political fortune hunter.

Talk about reduction in taxes. The kind of reduction that was made was this. A tax receipt that I hold in my hand on a farm of 129 acres in Knox County for the year of 1920 is for $69.49 and the receipt for the same in 1921 is $99.50.

The Democratic party is without the support of a great newspaper in Missouri.

There is no such thing now as Long Reed or Wilson Democrats. We are all just one kind of old-fashioned Democrats. I supported Long but I am now 100 per cent for Reed.

If we as Democrats do not stand together the Republican triumph will be complete and our humiliation complete.

REPORT AN ENTHUSIASTIC MEETING AT WASHINGTON

Mr. Roseberry And Miss Turner Say That President Harding Received The Delegates

G. B. Roseberry, representative of the local Red Cross Chapter, and Miss Betty Turner, who attended October 9 to 12 the annual convention of the organization at Washington report an enthusiastic meeting and important discussions on the coming year's work. After clearing rain, Washington with its monumental building looked its liveliest. President Harding, who heads the Red Cross in this country, personally received the delegates and they were photographed as a body before the White House.

The principal speakers of national reputation included Chief Justice Taft, vice-president of the Red Cross; Judge John Barton Payne, secretary of the interior and present active head of the Red Cross; Dr. Livingston, former chairman and now president of Cornell University; Hon. James Beck, solicitor general of the United States, and Sir Claude Hill of England, director general of the International League of the Red Cross Societies, located at Paris, France.

The subjects discussed in the general sessions and in the numerous smaller group conferences lead to important considerations in the handling of local chapter work in service to the soldiers, in meeting the calls of the president for giving relief in the Near East and elsewhere, in preparedness for great disasters liable to strike any community, on the Junior Red Cross work in the schools, on the varied activities that the 3,500 chapters in the country undertake such as volunteered service in making books for the blind or comforts for the boys in the hospitals or clothing for the destitute at home or abroad, in home hygiene and care of the sick, public health nursing, nutrition service and home service to civilians families where there are no local organizations to undertake this work.

Immediate steps were taken during the convention toward obtaining large contributions for the war sufferers in Asia minor.

RED FUSE REFLECTION CALLS OUT FIRE DEPARTMENT

Bellaire, O., Oct. 17.—A red fuse, left burning by a flagman, on a railroad was responsible for a run by the fire department. A man saw a reflection of the signal light in a window and thought a house was afire.

NEAR EAST PRINCE TO QUIT U. S. FOR NATIVE ISLE AND MANY WIVES.

Cleveland, Oct. 17.—The United States is not what it's "cracked up" to be.

So declares the Prince of Timon, who after a year's residence in America, most of which was spent in Cleveland, will return to his native land.

Timon is an island in the Mediterranean Sea, fifty miles from the coast of Palestine. It is ruled by Martello Abclishka, under a British protectorate. Any mature male among its 20,000 brown skinned population can take up to himself as many wives as he wants, needs or can afford. It doesn't cost much to dress them. A loin cloth is the only thing worn in select circles, or outside of them, for that matter.

While in America the Prince took his mother's name. He is known here as Maurice Newman. He resides at No. 2561 East Forty-ninth street.

Newman has seventeen brothers older than he who are in line for succession to his father, and thus has a slim chance of being king.

However, when he returns, he will discard the garb of civilization, take unto himself a few wives—and who would want to be a king, anyway?

Came 50 Miles to Hear Reed

Senator James A. Reed had one staunch supporter who drove over fifty miles to attend the meeting last night. This was A. H. Green of Oregon, who is eighty-two years old and has supported Reed every since the Senator entered public life. He was accompanied to Maryville by R. L. Green and Mrs. Bonnie Hogan.
